

AFGE's Online Education and Degree Program

AFGE has partnered with Grantham University to help facilitate educational access for a group of people who has historically been underserved by the college and university systems. Grantham's online programs have brought college education to thousands of adult learners who, because of the rising costs and lack of accessibility to traditional education, had all but given up on the dream of being a college graduate.

AFGE members can pursue a college degree in a variety of academic disciplines or simply take a few courses to update skills in a specific area. Online programs are available in: Business Administration, Criminal Justice, Computer Science, Engineering and more.

AFGE members realize significant savings on tuition and fees in the form of a unique scholarship program. AFGE members can take advantage of a new kind of "expeditionary education" that allows them to complete their college courses completely online while at home, at work, TDY, or from anywhere in the world.

Program Highlights –

Grantham University's degree programs are designed to be 'fast track' for working adult students. AFGE members may find that civilian testing (DSST & CLEP), any military courses or military training, and training courses taken with the government may be eligible for transfer credit.

The Grantham Evaluation Team analyzes previous college and military credits/training and then customizes an Individual Education Plan (IEP) for each student to ensure maximum transfer-credit benefit. Using these educational methods and Grantham's student support, some students can earn their college degree in as little as two years.

All Grantham undergraduate academic programs, support services, and one-to-one professor support are offered completely online. Access to the entire University system is only a keystroke away and available 24/7.
